Mrs. Frank Brady, of Fort Worth, Tex., recently delivered at the World's fair an address on "Changing Ideal of Southern Womanhood." It treated of the southern woman before the war as a household goddess and yet a slave to domestic duty; during the war as a heroine and ministering angel; after the war as a new being, thinking and acting with independence, earning her own living in the various avenues lately opened to her, and now a creature of throbbing ambition and boundless capacity, taking her place in the ranks of the useful without losing her position in the army of the beautiful.

The most destructive hailstorm known in the history of Cedar county occurred a few days ago, near Hartington, Neb. A farmer exhibited a pile of stones which measured from three to five inches in diameter, after being exposed to the heat twelve hours. Crops were totally destroyed, trees were stripped and windows and roofs were broken. The largest hail stone found measured ten by twelve inches. A relief fund was started for the sufferers and over $200 has already been raised. The storm covered an area of about 100 square miles.

THE BOYS WERE TAKEN

They Went to Steal Some Cattle but the Marshal and Posse Intercepted Them.

THE CHINESE SIX COMPANIES AGAIN.

Frederick Otten, a Whiteman, Commits Suicide at Texarkana, Ark., by Shooting Himself, and Dies Instantly.

VENITA, I. T., July 31.—Word having been received here that a band of cattle thieves contemplated a raid on the ranches in this vicinity, a deputy United States marshal and posse were sent out to intercept the gang. The posse came upon the gang Saturday night and a battle ensued. Ralph Hallock was shot and killed. Bill Somers was fatally wounded. Both were members of the gang of thieves. The other six escaped.

Mangagua captured.

PANAMA, July 29.—Confirmation has been received of the capture of Mangagua, Nicaragua, by the revolutionists. There was hard fighting and great loss of life on both sides. Six hundred Honduran troops, under command of Policarpo Bonilla, fought with the troops from Leon. During the fight a detachment from one of the government's garrisons in Mangagua deserted, and joined the Leon troops under Gen. Zelaz. Gen. Seavala, with the government troops, has gone to Granada. A strong defense will probably be made in that city. Communication has been cut off from all points in Nicaragua except Rivas and Granada.

Shot Himself.

TEXARKANA, Ark., July 31.—Frederick Otten, a white man aged 30 years, shot himself in the temple yesterday morning. He was formerly a clerk in Mullins' grocery store; a week ago he put up at the Argyle inn. Saturday night he gave evidences of delirium tremens, but was quieted and induced to go to bed. This was the last seen of him until a pistol shot in the hall of his hotel attracted the inmates and he was found dying on the floor with the smoking pistol clutched in his right hand.

Cholera in Italy.

ROME, July 26.—Notwithstanding the official denial of the Italian government of the reports that cholera had appeared in Italy, it is known that the disease is prevailing in Alexandria, the capital of Piedmont. Many cholera cases have been reported there and new cases are of daily occurrence. The disease is not confined to Alexandria. Cases are reported in a number of other places in Piedmont.

A Contempt Case.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 26.—The World's fair authorities have been served with notice by the attorneys for Charles W. Clingman that they will ask Judge Stein for an order compelling the directors to show cause why they are not in contempt of court for violation of the injunction restraining them from closing the gates Sundays.

Fatal Street Duel.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., July 27.—A street duel between A. L. Cook on one side and Smith and Stutsman on the other, took place at Keokuk Falls, this territory, recently. Cook was lightly wounded. Smith and Stutsman were both killed. Business rivalry was the cause.

Not Satisfied.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 31.—Thomas D. Riordan, attorney for the Chinese Six Companies, states that he is preparing to make a second test of the constitutionality of the Geary law at the October session of the United States supreme court.

Killed Himself and Wife.

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., July 29.—At Middlefork, Allen county, Hardy Caldwell, a respectable and well-to-do farmer, aged 60, killed himself and wife. A domestic quarrel was the cause.

Free Fight.

LONDON, July 28.—Yesterday while considering the Home Rule bill hot words were passed, finally resulting in a free for all fight in the house of commons. That over, apologies were offered, the bill passed and Gladstone was cheered.

Short in His Accounts.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 28.—Rev. O. G. Taylor, manager of the Interstate Investment company at Dallas, has been arrested on a charge of embezzlement. It is said that he is short $50,000 in his accounts.

A Kentucky Duel.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 28.—Swift Hunter and R. Will Davis, society swells, fought a duel at Frankfort over a young lady. Hunter was slightly wounded.

A General Fight.

CLEVELAND, O., July 29.—Last Monday a white man by the name of Davis was released from the Ohio penitentiary. He went to Corning, O., where he found his wife living with a negro. Thursday night he loaded up with whiskey and went to his wife's home. A quarrel was started which soon resulted in a fight. There were several persons in the house at the time and the fighting became general. Knives and revolvers were freely used and a number of shots were fired. James Clifford, a white man, was shot in the breast and died. His wife was shot in the thigh and is suffering greatly. Davis was seriously cut about the head, breast and arms and cannot recover. A colored man named Walker was shot in the leg. Both Mrs. Davis and the colored man who lived with her escaped with only a few slight cuts and bruises. All the participants in the affair, except Davis who is too ill to be moved, are under arrest.

A Horrible Murder.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 27.—A fearful triple murder took place during the early hours yesterday morning, two children and their mother meeting their fate at the hands of some fiend. It was about 2 p. m. when the south-side fire department was called out to extinguish a slight fire in the house of John F. Monse, who lived on Oak alley on the side of the hill. After extinguishing it some of the members of the department in looking about the house were horrified at the sight of three dead bodies lying close to one another. They were those of Monse's wife and two small children. There were three deep, ugly dents in the poor woman's head, which showed she had just been struck a deadly blow from behind, then the fearful work was finished with some blunt instrument, either a hatchet or hammer. The little children had the appearance of having been smothered to death, though their bodies also showed marks of violence. Their clothing was burned a little, though had they been living when the fire started they would have had no trouble in getting away from the small blaze. These children were Mary and Maggie and were 4 and 2 years old respectively. The husband was at once arrested, charged with committing the horrible crime. Monse is a laborer, 35 years of age, and apparently very ignorant. There was one more child in the family, but by some means the little one escaped the general massacre. The child who was saved is only 5 years old, but this morning he weepingly told the police that his father killed his mother. "He hit her on the head three times with a hatchet," sobbed the little fellow. The neighbors think jealousy was the cause of the deed.

Tired of Life.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 28.—Tired of life, W. H. Irving of St. Winthrop Beach, Mass., committed suicide some time Wednesday night or early yesterday morning on the lake shore. The method used was horrible and most revolting. A partly filled can of powder by his side and his torn and mangled face indicated that he had filled his mouth with powder and then probably with a lighted match had caused it to explode. Irving left a note stating that he was out of work and was tired of life; to notify his wife at St. Winthrop Beach, Mass., but not to send her his body as she had no money with which to bury it.

Died of Her Injuries.

TEXARKANA, Ark., July 27.—Mrs. Allen E. Jones, who was found with her three children terribly hacked and cut with an ax and in an unconscious condition last Saturday morning, the victim, it is supposed, of the husband and father, whose suicidal body was found hanging in an outhouse, died yesterday morning without having regained consciousness. Two of the children are still alive, but cannot speak.

Shot Officially.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 28.—Jose Andrade, during the administration of Gen. Gonzalez as governor of Guajuato in charge of the Piedras Gordas district of the state, was arrested a few days ago on the charge that he shot a number of innocent persons without trial. Upon being arrested Col. Andrade was taken to the city of Leon, where he was tried, found guilty and ordered shot. He was shot at daylight in a public part of the city.

A Tennessee Lynching.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 28.—A special to a local paper announces a lynching at Dresden, Ed. Bell, colored, killed Sam White, his brother-in-law. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of murder in the first degree. Intense indignation was created by the killing. Yesterday morning a masked mob broke into the jail, took Bell and hung him.

Forest Fires.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 29.—Fire, a town in the northwestern part of this state, which has a population of about 800, has been destroyed by fire. In all thirty-four buildings were consumed, causing a loss of about $200,000, with but little insurance. Dispatches from Midford and Prentice Junction say those towns have been wiped out by forest fires.

Dr. Paul Giber, the head of the Pastour Institute, in New York has an interesting patient. His name is John P. Smithson, and he is a farmer of the village of Washington, Md. He was bitten by a hog, which had been badly lacerated by a mad Newfoundland dog. All of the animals were owned by Mr. Smithson, and were kept in a barn adjoining the Smithson home. The case is interesting from a medical point of view, as showing the extent of the transfer of the disease from one animal to another and then to a human being. Dr. Giber says the patient has undoubted symptoms of hydrophobia. He is carefully watching the developments of the disease in Mr. Smithson, and has given it as his opinion that the patient would recover. Dr. Giber has not lost a patient by death in nearly two years.

Mr. Smithson was bitten by the hog about a week ago. Six weeks before that time the hog had been bitten by another hog, which ten days previously had been bitten by the Newfoundland dog. The dog had been in the habit of climbing into the hog pen. For some days he had shown symptoms of illness, but Mr. Smithson did not suspect that he was suffering from hydrophobia. His attention was attracted while at the barn by signals from the hog pen and he went out in time to see the dog dash out of the door. He was foaming at the mouth, and Mr. Smithson killed him with a shot from a revolver. Then he turned his attention to the hog which had been bitten in the head and body. Under Mr. Smithson's treatment, assisted by a country veterinary surgeon, the animal apparently improved. He was removed from the other hogs, but one of his fellows found him out, and was bitten in the leg.

Mr. Smithson found the second animal wandering about the farm with a badly torn foot. He tried to corral the animal, and in trying to head off the hog he was bitten in the right ankle. Mr. Smithson limped to his house, and temporary remedies were applied. The two hogs were then killed. Mr. Smithson was never bitten by animal before. He is of sturdy physique, which will materially aid him in recovering.

FROM QUEST TO HOST.

Major Cluskey's Camp "Whip" Completely

Floored "Whip" in 10 Min.

Governor Porter told a good story on Colonel "Whip" Wintersmith, one of the best-known characters around Washington, and a Kentuckian by birth. Colonel Wintersmith is a most genial companion, tells a good story as well as anyone and is brilliant in repartee. "I never knew him to be turned down but once," said Governor Porter to a writer for the New York Recorder. "Mike Cluskey was the man who did it. Cluskey was an editor at Memphis at the breaking out of the war, but thinking the sword mightier than the pen, laid down the latter for the former. He was elected to the Confederate congress at Richmond and served as a member until the war was over. After peace had been declared he was making his way back to Tennessee and stopped at Louisville, Ky. Colonel Wintersmith had returned from the army also, and having lost his fortune by the war was living in Louisville with a wealthy sister-in-law, who was a widow. Colonel Wintersmith was at home there, and had everything at his disposal. If it had been his own, he lived in elegance.

"When Major Cluskey reached Louisville, Colonel Wintersmith took him to his 'home,' knew that his old comrade was 'busted,' and told him to make this place his home as long as he liked. Major Cluskey accepted. About two or three months after he had been a guest the major and his hostess got in a carriage, drove round to the home of a priest and were married. Colonel Wintersmith heard of it and rushed after them to find out what it all meant. Major Cluskey, in his most gallant manner, replied: 'It means, colonel, that I am the host, you the guest, and so long as you make yourself agreeable we will be glad to have you remain with us.'

"It was the only time I ever saw Dick floored, but he was completely knocked out that time. I have seen Dick since then, however, get away by talking Senator Joe Blackburn to a standstill."
